Palestra com Ruth Oldenziel
28/Fev/2023, 17h-19h

Learning from Cycling Histories: Boom, Busts, and Renewal

Why should policymakers, educators, and activists care about past histories of urban cycling? In this presentation, Oldenziel discusses the value of historical research for cities present and future challenges based on working with dozens of cities and stakeholders around the world.

The presentation is followed by a Q+A to discuss the challenges and opportunities for Lisbon.

Ruth Oldenziel (PhD Yale '92) is professor of history and innovation at Eindhoven University of Technology in The Netherlands. She is editor in chief of Technology and Culture and directs a Research-Book-Web-Teaching project Cycling Cities: The Global Experience, which will feature the case of Lisbon. Her publications include books, anthologies, and articles in American, gender, mobility, and technology studies.

Local: ISEG, Terraço-esplanada (Rooftop), Edif. Quelhas, Rua das Francesinhas nr.21, Lisboa.

A palestra será exclusivamente em presença física e em inglês, com a possibilidade de serem colocadas questões em português (que serão traduzidas).
